

Health Education England E-learning for healthcare (HEE e-lfh)*E-Learning: Domestic Violence and Abuse –accessible via ESR*The aim of this training:

Domestic Violence and Abuse training takes a trauma informed approach which takes account of the whole family who are experiencing domestic violence and abuse, looking at root causes of behaviour whilst also challenging and holding those perpetrating the abuse to account. The needs of children remain paramount and there is greater emphasis on ensuring that the “voice of the child” is heard and remains central to assessment and safety planning.

Training is intended for:

Due to the transferable nature of the content, the modules are relevant to practitioners working with unborn, children and families across the wider healthcare system. The modules are aligned to underpinning statutory guidance for professionals who have safeguarding obligations.

This e-learning programme will enable you to meet level 3 of the NICE guidance Domestic violence and abuse: multi-agency working training recommendation.

The programme consists of four new introductory modules which have been updated and added in April 2020 following a refresh of the evidence, policy and legislation on domestic violence and abuse. Include the latest definition of domestic violence and abuse which incorporates concepts of coercive control, includes both single incidents and patterns of behaviour and covers the concept of ‘economic abuse’.

- Module one – Understanding domestic violence and abuse
- Module two – Identification of domestic violence and abuse
- Module three – Risk assessment for victims of domestic violence and abuse
- Module four – Safety planning and support for families

The modules include videos, case studies, links to aid learning and questions to test your knowledge of the subjects and reflect on your learning.
